Parenting Toward the Kingdom May 03 2020 The Orthodox Christian tradition is filled with wisdom and guidance about the biblical path of salvation. Yet this guidance remains largely inaccessible to parents and often disconnected from the parenting challenges we face in our homes. Parenting Toward the Kingdom will help you make the connections between the spiritual life as we understand it in the Orthodox Church and the ongoing challenges of raising children. It takes the best child development research and connects it with the timeless truths of our Christian faith to offer you real strategies for navigating the challenges of daily life.

Child Rearing in the Home and School May 15 2021 This volume is intended to address contemporary aspects of child rearing in the home and the school, as well as major dimensions of inter face between the home and the school. The authors of these chapters have used varying styles and approaches, and the range of perspectives is very broad and inclusive. An essential notion integrating all chapters is that child rearing is a human ecological concern of dominant importance for the home, the school, and the community during the 1980's and that this will continue to be true in the future. This volume is intended to be useful as a reference book, as a text, for researchers and for policy-makers. It is hoped that the volume also will be of use to parents, teachers, school administrators, child-care workers and others who are interested in child nurturance. The editors wish to extend appreciation to many individuals who made this effort possible. Our colleagues, Hiram Fitzgerald and Marjorie Kostelnik, have been most helpful and encouraging. We thank them for their patience, support, and invaluable editorial assistance during the production of the camera-ready copy of the volume. We also thank Barbara Taylor for her assistance in typing the chapters, and Carrie DeMyers for typing the camera-ready copy. Carrie's good-nature and positive outlook helped to smooth over the many frustrations inherent in the assembly and production of anthologies such as this one.

The Impact of Intelligence, Culture and Race on Child-rearing Practices Dec 10

2020 CONCEPTUAL FRAME WORK The present study is directly related with the Child rearing practices. The child rearing practices is affected by so many important variables like that of SES, Education, Culture, Caste, Intelligence and Creativity etc. There is no doubt to say that Child rearing practices are the interactions between a child and mother or it can be said that rearing involves bringing up and taking care of the child from birth till fourteen years of age. It is not a technical term with precise significant. As per seare Maccaby and Levin the child rearing practices refer generally to all those interactions, which includes the expression of the parents, values, interests, beliefs, disbeliefs as well as their care taking behaviour. According to Mehta the child rearing practices are reflecting of basic attitudes of the mother towards the child. An humble attempt has been made in this study, to study the impact of intelligence, culture and caste on child rearing practices. The detailed description of all these variables alongwith the components of child rearing practices are as to follow hereinafter,

29 Rules for Smart Parenting Aug 25 2019 The 29 Rules for Smart Parenting are intended to help the reader to become more effective as parents and teachers. On this basis, any advice to establish a friendly relationship with your children misses the fundamental point in the parenting challenge: the responsibility felt and lived. This provides a feeling of security that is far different from feeling accepted in a friendly relationship. Children feel in this elevated awareness that something is expected of them, but at the same time, also know they are on safe ground to experiment, to try, and to fail. Such parenting builds trust and establishes an inner basis on which self-confidence and personal responsibility can develop and mature."

A Serious Case of Neglect Nov 20 2021 These days we hear a great deal about child development and child rearing, but it almost exclusively focuses on the child's remembered experiences and actions. A Serious Case of Neglect seeks to redress this one-sided perspective with a carefully considered theory of parenting and an in-depth analysis of the parenting role. Drawing on over thirty years of experience as a family counselor and therapist, Alice van der Pas illustrates her theory with clinical examples and develops a conceptual framework that breaks down the elements involved in the development of a good parent. This book is an intriguing work in family psychology that sheds new light on an issue rarely navigated from the perspective of the parent.

21st-century Dad Jan 11 2021 "21st Century Dad" provides a real life description of issues common to new parents in a generation of working couples. The book is written by a dad for dads, so topics that fathers really want to know about are addressed. Ninety different topics are discussed and include: cost of having a baby; how much free time you will really have; how to (change a diaper, burp, clothe and bathe an infant) with pictures;

how to better understand mom through pregnancy, birth and post-partum; what you can expect to do around the home; resuming sexual intimacy; the mini-van conversation; common firsts (smile, crawl, walk, tooth, professional photo, time alone with baby); child rearing discussions with mom; and a day with an infant and a two year old to name a few. "21st Century Dad" is an easy to read topic driven book men can relate to.

Compassionate Child-Rearing Nov 01 2022 In this brilliantly conceived and revolutionary work, Dr. Firestone develops the theory and underlying dynamics involved in disturbed family relationships and negative parental attitudes that characterize generally accepted patterns of child-rearing. The author expands on the phenomenological descriptions of the traditional abuses of children previously offered by Alice Miller, R. D. Laing, James Garbarino, and others, and explains how well-intentioned parents unwittingly injure their children's self-esteem and psychological functioning.

Disadvantaged Child: Hypotheses regarding the effects of child-rearing patterns on the disadvantaged child Jun 15 2021

Parents And The Dynamics Of Child Rearing Mar 25 2022 Research into parent-child relationships is a diverse field of inquiry, attracting investigators from a variety of disciplines and subdisciplines. This book integrates and synthesizes the literature by focusing on issues concerning the parent. The text is organized around four key questions: What determines parental behavior? What are the effects of parenting on children? What makes some parents more effective than others? Why do some parents maltreat their children? George Holden adopts a dynamic rather than a static perspective on parenting. This dynamic approach reflects parents' capacity to modify their behavior as they respond to changes in their children and in their own lives. Throughout the text, historical antecedents as well as methodological and theoretical issues are highlighted. Although the book is designed for advanced courses focusing on the parent child relationship, it also provides a good overview for those interested in current research concerning parenting.

The Protestant Temperament Jun 27 2022 Bringing together an extraordinary richness of evidence—from letters, diaries, and other intimate family records of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries—Philip Greven explores the strikingly distinctive ways in which Protestant children were reared in America. In tracing the hidden continuities of religious experience, of attitudes toward God, children, the self, sexuality, pleasure, virtue, and achievement, Greven identifies three distinct Protestant temperaments prevailing among Americans at the time: the Evangelical, the Moderate, and the General. The Protestant Temperament is a powerful reassessment of the role of child-rearing and religion in early American life.

Mothering and Fathering Dec 22 2021 Suggests that the difference in child rearing styles between women's tendency to nurture, and men's to encourage independence, may be innate, and recommends the advantage to children of encouraging both approaches.

Child-rearing and Reform Apr 25 2022 The author analyzes the nature of child-rearing in eighteenth-century Poland and its linkage to the reform movements that swept the country after the first partition in 1772. She finds that family behavior cannot be separated from politics in Polish society: in fact, education and child-rearing were major issues in the reform movement of the 1770s. Lorence-Kot shows where Poland lagged behind Western Europe, and how various reformers proposed to advance Polish society through new methods of raising children in the upper classes. The resistant attitudes of Polish parents are examined in detail, as are their attitudes toward their children, corporal punishment, schooling, and other child-related issues. The author explores the push for a wholesale adoption of French models of child-care and education, as well as the later reforms which met with the modern demands of European society.

Black Teenage Mothers Mar 01 2020 In this ground-breaking book, Constance Williams reveals why, contrary to the adverse outcomes previously attributed to their lot, many black teenage mothers consider their lives enriched by childbearing. Here is a poignant exploration of the meaning of pregnancy and motherhood to young women who, although impoverished, express hope as freely tell their stories and reveal new truths about their attitudes. Williams discovers that it is more often socialization -- not ignorance -- that leads black teens into motherhood at such a young age. She also reveals why early childbearing for these teens may well be an adaptive and even reasonable response to their social and cultural realities.

For Your Own Good Sep 30 2022 For Your Own Good, the contemporary classic exploring the serious if not gravely dangerous consequences parental cruelty can bring to bear on children everywhere, is one of the central works by Alice Miller, the celebrated Swiss psychoanalyst. With her typically lucid, strong, and poetic language, Miller investigates the personal stories and case histories of various self-destructive and/or violent individuals to expand on her theories about the long-term affects of abusive child-rearing. Her conclusions—on what sort of parenting can create a drug addict, or a murderer, or a Hitler—offer much insight, and make a good deal of sense, while also straying far from psychoanalytic dogma about human nature, which Miller vehemently rejects. This important study paints a shocking picture of the violent world—indeed, of the ever-more-violent world—that each generation helps to create when traditional upbringing, with its hidden cruelty, is perpetuated. The book also presents readers with useful solutions in this regard—namely, to resensitize the victimized child who has been trapped within the adult, and to unlock the emotional life that has been frozen in repression.

The Thinking Parent Sep 06 2020 Noting that the principles of good child rearing that apply to very young children are the foundation of the principles that deal with older children, this book translates those early foundational principles and applies them to the kindergarten through grade six child. The material uses a common sense approach that acknowledges the uniqueness of each parent and child and encourages parents to think through their own special solutions to child-rearing quandaries. Rather than offering a system or "quick fix," the book is based on the assumptions that no one knows the child as well as the parent; the parent is an intelligent, searching person; and the parent is looking for a way to sort out the occasional chaos and frustration of parenting. Following an introduction, "The Perfect Parenting Myth," the 13 chapters are: (1) "A Look at Development"; (2) "An Introduction to Self Esteem"; (3) "Moral Development"; (4) "Developing Internal Control"; (5) "Common Courtesy"; (6) "Your Child and Work"; (7) "Family Rituals and Traditions"; (8) "The Art of Asking Questions"; (9) "Discipline and Punishment"; (10) "Taking Time"; (11) "Your Parenting Style"; (12) "Motivation to Learn"; and (13) "Beginning a New School Year."
